

Essential everyday support and positioning

Foam Cushions—best for patients who:

- ✓ Require low to moderate positioning support
- ✓ Have moderate pressure relief needs
- ✓ Need a durable sitting surface

Gel-Foam Cushions—best for patients who:

- ✓ Require advanced positioning support
- ✓ Are prone to pressure injuries
- ✓ Have fragile or sensitive skin

■ Interconnected air cells make foam lightweight and durable

■ Conforms to user's shape, relieving pressure and reducing injury risk

■ Gel-foam offers a cooler surface and additional pressure relief

Foam Wheelchair Cushions

Foam cushions offer an easy, economical solution for improving user comfort, providing stability and support, and helping to relieve pressure points that can lead to tissue breakdown and injuries.

Open-cell Polyfoam with interconnected, air-permeable cells is lightweight and flexible, with both durability and compressibility. Known for its resilience, Latex Foam is among the most comfortable of cushions and is excellent for users who sit for long periods.

Urethane Foam offers less cushioning while giving users more support without bottoming out.

Gel-Foam Wheelchair Cushions

Gel-topped cushions add a gel bladder on top of a foam base to provide lower contact pressure on fragile skin and a cooler surface to reduce perspiration and heat buildup.
