

Don't air your laundry—cover it up!

Protect linens from contaminants while avoiding citations

- ✓ Comply with linen management recommendations
- ✓ Avoid possible JCAHO citations for improper linen storage
- ✓ Protect staff and patients from potentially harmful contaminants

Improper storage

When clean linens arrive from laundry facilities, they can be improperly stored on open carts that may sit in hallways or other common areas, potentially exposing them to a laundry list of airborne contaminants—and eventually making their way to patients and staff.

Avoid citations

Uncovered linen carts can also be a red flag for JCAHO surveyors, which can result in a possible infection control infraction for your facility. JCAHO recommends developing a linen management process that follows guidelines from organizations such as the CDC or NAILM (National Association of Institutional Linen Management), which recommend the use of cart covers as part of a proper protocol.

Comply with AliMed

To help comply with these recommendations, AliMed offers a full range of cart covers available in a variety of materials, including: Antimicrobial Waterproof, Heavy Duty, or Flame-Retardant nylons, or we can custom fabricate one to your specifications.

See reverse for ordering information.
